THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF CAPS NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES

Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentleman of the House:

We support of this legislation. We thank Mr. Speaker and other members of the House for their timeless efforts over the last 18 months to bring this issue and this important matter for the safety of the citizens of Illinois to this conclusion. For the purposes of legislative intent, we submit this written statement. The medical malpractice crisis is a complex situation. There are three components that must be addressed to help resolve this crisis: 1) insurance and the problems brought about by risks that are becoming uninsurable; 2) ensuring the professional competence of physicians licensed to practice in Illinois; and 3) reforming civil malpractice litigation including a limit or cap on non-economic damages. We believe that these three steps are necessary to assure that health care services are not further diminished to the citizens of Illinois and that the public health will be protected.

Many have questioned whether caps on non-economic damages can be constitutional in the State of Illinois. The opponents have argued that caps are unconstitutional because the Illinois Supreme Court has ruled similar laws unconstitutional twice. We rise in support of this legislation and believe that it will be and should be deemed constitutional by the Illinois Supreme Court. The Illinois Supreme Court found a cap on damages unconstitutional in 1976. That cap was a $500,000 limit on all economic and non-economic damages in a medical malpractice case. The Court found that the General Assembly could not limit all damages although our neighbor, Indiana, has had such a limit for decades. The Court did not however say the General Assembly may never impose limits on damages, but instead required the limits to be rationally related to the State's interests. The Court in Wright v. Central DuPage Hospital Association, was concerned that under a $500,000 cap the plaintiff might not recover all of his actual economic damages. That $500,000 cap on total damages was declared unconstitutional as arbitrary and in violation of the Illinois Constitution's prohibition against special legislation. In fact, the Court said: "We do not hold or even imply that under no circumstances may the General Assembly abolish a common law cause of action without a concomitant quid pro quo."

The Illinois Supreme Court next considered the constitutionality of a 1995 legislative cap in the Best v. Taylor Machine Works. The 1995 cap in Best limited only non-economic damages recovered by a plaintiff but it applied to all tort cases, not only medical malpractice. The Court in Best struck down the cap principally for two reasons. First, it was special legislation and second, it violated separation of powers – both constitutional principles. The Court in essence did not find a logical or adequate connection between limiting non-economic damages in all cases and controlling the cost of healthcare. Further, the Court held that this cap interfered with the traditional duties of the judiciary and thus violated the Separation of Powers Doctrine under the Constitution.

Now, we have before us a cap on non-economic damages of $1,000,000 for hospitals and their personnel and $500,000 for physicians and their personnel limited specifically to medical malpractice cases. This cap is significantly different from the caps struck down in the Wright and in Best cases. Unlike the cap in Wright, this cap applies only to non-economic damages. Meeting the concerns of the Wright Court, this cap would provide for all economic damages to be awarded to the plaintiff and actually provides additional economic damages for those individuals who do not have demonstrable income. Further meeting the concerns of both the Wright and Best Courts, this cap is limited to medical malpractice cases and wrongful death actions involving medical malpractice. It is narrowly focused to the current crisis and is specifically limited to that crisis. The State of Illinois has a legitimate State interest in reducing the costs of, and increasing access to, health care. The State of Illinois exercising its police powers can preserve and protect the citizens of Illinois by enacting legislation which would increase the regulation of the practice of medicine, increase the regulation of insurance companies and modify the Code of Civil Procedure including establishing a limit on non-economic damages. This legislation has been carefully crafted to be narrowly targeted to reduce the liability exposure of health care providers in medical malpractice actions in order to increase access to care and protect the citizens of the State of Illinois from the malpractice litigation crisis that currently is evident throughout the State of Illinois.

Some critics profess that the General Assembly cannot constitutionally limit damages in medical malpractice cases. To the contrary, in Bernier v. Burris, the Illinois Supreme Court upheld not just the limitation but the total elimination of a complete category of damages in medical malpractice cases, that being punitive damages. The Court also upheld elimination of punitive damages in legal malpractice, for which there was no evidence in the legal or legislative record of a crisis. The Court recognized that the General Assembly clearly has the constitutional authority to determine that a malpractice crisis existed in Illinois and that the elimination of punitive damages was rationally related to the legitimate State interest of providing access to health care for the citizens of Illinois and protecting public health. The Court specifically concluded and we quote from the Bernier decision: “the elimination of awards for punitive damages in actions for medical malpractice serves the legislative goals for reducing damages generally against the medical profession. For these reasons we conclude the provision does not constitute special legislation.” If the General Assembly can eliminate a category of damages that is intrinsically difficult to quantify, such as punitive damages, then the General Assembly can limit non-economic damages to protect the citizens of Illinois from the loss of physicians, physician specialists, and hospital services and to help access to health care for all our citizens.

It is clear to this General Assembly that the increased costs of medical liability insurance result in increased financial burdens on physicians and hospitals. These burdens have contributed to the reduction and availability of medical care throughout the State and has discouraged medical students from choosing Illinois as the place where they will receive their medical education and to practice medicine. The public is protected by making services of hospitals and physicians more available. The caps in this bill will help accomplish that objective.

Economic and non-economic damages are separate and distinct forms of damages. Objective standards exist for determining economic damages. There is no objective basis for judging an amount of compensation under non-economic damages. The State of Illinois exercising its police powers has the right to limit forms of damages in order to preserve and protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens of Illinois. Legislatively determined amounts of economic damages in medical liability cases are reasonable and rationally related to legitimate State interests.

Some may reasonably ask whether the limits on non-economic damages in this bill are fair. The majority of the states in this country have caps on non-economic damages in medical liability cases that range from a low of $250,000 to $1 Million. The limits in this bill fall squarely within this range. In fact, other states limit both economic and non-economic damages: Colorado has imposed a total limit of $1,000,000 on total damages – Indiana has imposed a similar limit of $1,250,000. Other states have reasonably concluded that such amounts are fair and reasonable compensation for plaintiffs while protecting the public’s access to health care and their courts have found caps constitutional. Illinois should follow suit.

Some may also ask why there is one cap for physicians and another cap for hospitals. The difference between the cap for hospitals and the cap for physicians reflects the twin goals of the legislation: to make health care more accessible to citizens of Illinois while providing fairness in payment to individuals who have been injured by medical malpractice. With respect to accessibility, setting the cap lower for physicians reflects the fact physicians can, more easily than hospitals, leave the State, avoid performing higher risk procedures, or retire. If the same cap that is proposed for hospitals were imposed on physicians, it is inevitable that physicians would leave the State, limit their practice to low risk procedures, or retire prematurely. It is also inevitable that new physicians would not locate in our state. With respect to fairness, hospitals have a greater capacity to bear and spread economic risk than physicians do. Thus, it is fair and reasonable that the cap on hospitals be higher than the cap on physicians.

This current health care crisis is exemplified by the numerous calls, letters, e-mails that we have all received from our citizens, as well as the newspaper articles reflecting the exodus of physicians and the dire straights that hospitals find themselves. Additionally, units of local government have taken the extraordinary end of adopting their own ordinances limiting non-economic damages. The State of Illinois in order to provide access to care and protect its citizens, must now establish limits on non-economic damages.
